Out of every single dish Ive ever heard of this has got to be one of the worst ideas. Ive heard my fare share of weird dishes and even tried some. Ive eaten Live Lobster Sashimi, Live Shrimp, Scorpions, Dog meat, Silk Worms, African Ants, Grasshoppers, Maguey Worms, Cow's Tongue, Cow's Eyes, Cow's Brains, actually Ive eaten pretty much everything in a Cow's Head, Oh and baby cows cooked in their blood, those are really good, I'm pretty sure Ive also eaten cat at one point of my life without actually noticing thanks to the wonderful street taco stands in Mexico oh and Ive eaten rat as well that I know for sure, I ate it in a burger from a Mexican Burger stand that legally sold Rat burgers(they where farmed rats so no diseases or the like, and they where even organic rats hehe) BUT NOTHING compares to this stupidity.

Well I must confess although everything I mentioned tasted good(the best was the live lobster and the Cow's Eyes) the silk worms consistency was a bit gross but still tasty. So read more to check out the SPAM FAJITAS recipe, serves 8, I found it on my gmail recipe feed but this is enough reason to cancel it.

... so Ive actually looked into canceling it but it appears to be impossible since Im not even subscribed to it. I got it on gmail's web clips which I use as simple RSS reader to keep up to date with the blogs and webpages I like but not only does it show my RSS feeds it also shows sponsored links and for some strange reason spam recipes. Im pretty bothered by this since it doesnt appear to be sponsored(because curiously the sponsored links specify that its a sponsored link while this one just says spam recipe) and its definetly not something I chose still Google is feeding it to my mailbox without me wanting it, just like spam itself. By now Ive seen everything from Spam Fajitas to Spam Hot Cakes going through a bunch of other disgusting things. This means Im in the need of a new RSS reader, Ill just look for something I can put on toolbar in firefox instead of having to deal with annoying spam recipes.
